To continue the development of its internet services division operated by Totally Communications Limited, a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company. Part of the funds will be used to develop additional online services to sit alongside its already developed dating, flatshare, business directory and social networking software.

The Company will continue to seek additional partnerships with publishers to monetise their online communities, a recent example being the joint venture with Northern and Shell announced in January 2007 whereby Totally is providing its proprietary online flatshare capability across Express, Daily Star and OK Magazine websites.

Publishing Division

To fund the roll-out of online services outside of the UK and specifically into distinct Jewish communities in Europe and the US as well as exploiting specific print based opportunities in the UK and US. To this end the company has signed heads of agreement with Lord Evans of Watford and Robin Morgan (Sunday Times Magazine Editor) to launch a weekly news digest magazine pilot in the UK.

Change of Broker

The Company also announces the appointment of HB Corporate a trading division of Hoodless Brennan Plc as the Company's broker with immediate effect.

Totally CEO, Daniel Assor, commented;

'We are very pleased to have completed the placing which will allow us to continue to develop our product offering and through the monetization of online communities, whether it be communities owned and operated by Totally or communities that we choose to partner with, seek to increase shareholder value.'
